

Colton motor manufacturer Brithinee expands

01:57 PM PST on Wednesday, November 17, 2010

The Business Press

Brithinee Electric recently expanded its Colton facility enabling the company to repair motors and generators up to 20 tons. The new 20,000 square-foot building will handle a growing business, with large wind generators coming from sites as far away as Washington, Oregon, Wyoming, and Texas.

Brithinee Electric is one of Southern California's leading large electric motor/generator repair facilities. The company also makes large motor control systems and sells new motors.

In addition, a new training center will better accommodate customers desiring more in-depth training from experts in the industry. It also will be used for bringing together industry experts to discuss innovative products and techniques, as well as outstanding technical problems.

Co-founders, Don and Wally Brithinee, have long been interested in improving reliability of motor repair methods, motor efficiency and industry standards. The company began in 1963, and has continued to develop since that time into the leading electric motor repair facility in the southwestern U.S.

The company specializes in remanufacturing industrial electric motors and wind generators and produces custom motor control centers for clients. Brithinee Electric is one of the largest sellers of NEMA Premium Efficiency industrial electric motors. These motors are the highest electrical efficiency motors available today.

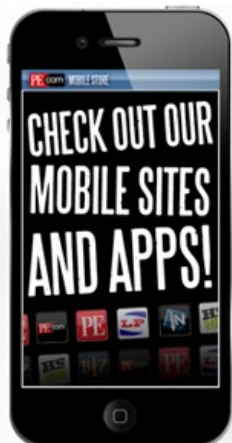

Comment on this story

Guidelines: We welcome your thoughts, but for the sake of all readers, please refrain from the use of obscenities, personal attacks or racial slurs. All comments are subject to our terms of service and may be removed. Repeat offenders may lose commenting privileges.

Advertisement

Advertisement

Business Events

- » Recession doesn't deter Inland entrepreneurs honored Wednesday
- » Banker Bowman to speak at luncheon
- » Guest lecturer to speak at Banta Center

» More

Business Blogs

- » Small businesses hurt by shrinking home values
- » Gift cards help slow down retail layoffs
- » Holiday season marked by strong online spending

» More

Industry News

Select

Footer Links

- » Contact Us
- » Terms of Service
- » Privacy
- » Site Map

Advertise

- » Media Kit
- » Rate Card
- » Calendar
- » About Our Ads